

The International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD) is celebrating the International Year of Biodiversity (IYB) 2010 with various activities including participating in global conferences and meetings, and organising regional and national training sessions and other events. The Centre is using its experience in biodiversity conservation and management in the Hindu Kush-Himalayan region to commemorate the IYB theme 'Biodiversity is Life, Biodiversity is Our Life' and use it to raise awareness about the value of Himalayan biodiversity for livelihoods, and the challenges faced as a result of various threats including climate change. The presentation will be supported by video clips, photos, and poster displays, followed by a discussion.
